Expressing obligation and giving advice with modals: must, have to, and should:

1- giving advice:

You can give advice using the modal should or shouldn't

Examples:

- You should do your homework every night.
- You shouldn't spend a lot of money. You need to save it for a vacation.

2- Expressing obligation:

You can express obligation using the modals have to, don't have to, and must.

Examples:

- We have to return in our papers tomorrow. We don't have to type them.
- They must arrive on time, or we will leave without them.

Chapter 4

I have many qualities that have made me a success as a bike messenger. First of all, I have the ability to persevere when there are difficulties. And bike messengers run into many difficulties. I have had problems with drivers who almost run me over, constant rain for weeks at a time, unreadable addresses, and rude customers. In addition, my dedication to the job has also served me well. I believe that you should do your best at even the most routine jobs. For example, I work hard at finding short cuts around the city. And I'm proud to say that when a package needs to be delivered really quickly, my boss always calls on me. Finally, my success as a bike messenger is partly due to my sense of humor. Many times I have wanted to quit, but I just try to laugh at the situation.

Using the correct tense: simple past or present perfect

1- Simple past tense:

Use the past tense to describe an action or state that was completed in the past, especially when the specific time is mentioned.

Example:

I was in Beirut in 2005.

2- Present perfect tense:

Use the present perfect tense to describe an action or state that was completed in the past but we don't know when.

Example:

I have been to Beirut many times.

Use the present perfect tense to describe an action that was started in the past and continues to the present. We often use since or for in this case.

Examples:

- Every year since 2002, I have gone to Beirut for summer vacation. (I still go)

I have lived in St. Petersburg for three years.

Using demonstratives to unify a paragraph:

A good writer uses phrases with this, that, these or those- demonstratives- to refer to ideas in previous sentences.

Use that or those when referring to things and experiences in the past.

Example:

- When I was 15, I read a book about Sammy Sosa. That was the first time I thought about becoming a professional baseball player.

Use this or these when referring to things and experiences that are still relevant today.

Example:

- My classmates and I have gotten very close. These students have taught me that language doesn't have to be a barrier to friendship.

Completing sentences with prepositional phrases and demonstratives:

- 1- Two years and six months ago, my first child was born. On that day, my life changed.
- 2- I lived in a refugee camp in Thailand from the age of seven to eleven. During those years, my parents' only hope was going to live in North America.
- 3- I have always been shy. For this reason, learning a new language is a challenge for me.
- 4- I came to Mexico City two years ago. In this city, I have had many new experiences.
- 5- I was too short and not thin enough. Because of these factors, I could not continue to dance professionally.
- 6- I came to the International English Program six months ago. In this school, I have made many new friends.
