Title:

Microsoft Translation And Babylon Translation A Competitive Study

Description:

This search reviews assessment of translation programs Microsoft, and Babylon to compare between them on the one hand, the performance, quality, and preference the review of the advantages, and disadvantages of each Microsoft translator, and interpreter Babylon.

Tools and Methodology:

In this tested study, I will do an interview with 16 female students in the King Saud University Faculty of Arts, level eighth, in Riyadh city, Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. I divided them into two groups, each one has a total of eight female students, provide them with a specific group of texts in Arabic language for translation into English language by using a translation program (Microsoft or Babylon). However, I will give them a series of questions at the end of this questionnaire, to check out the response by female students, to measure their experience while using the two programs, it is an attempt to improve the performance of programs, and develop a translation through knowledge of their shortcomings, and problems.
